By law, DFS provides services to federal investigatory agencies to the extent its resources allow. DFS scientists provide technical assistance and training, evaluate and analyze evidence, interpret results, and provide expert testimony related to the analyses of physical evidence recovered from crime scenes and submitted for examination. Two years later, an act of the General Assembly created the Division of Consolidated Laboratory Services DCLS, which included a Bureau of Forensic Science. The new Bureau absorbed the Commonwealth's existing drug and toxicology laboratories in addition to providing other forensic services.

In 1996, the Division transferred from the Department of General Services DGS to the Department of Criminal Justice Services DCJS. In 2005, the Division was elevated to Department status under the Governor's Secretary of Public Safety. DFS continues to provide comprehensive forensic laboratory services to over 400 law enforcement agencies in the Commonwealth, while remaining independent of any of them. Adult Forensic Services works in collaboration with the criminal justice system to reduce homelessness and recidivism in both jail and psychiatric hospitalization.
